

Tuesday, May 30, 2017

Dear Minister Lalonde and Attorney General Naqvi,

Please find attached our review of Chapter 9 of Justice Tulloch's Independent police Oversight review Report, as requested by you during our round-table discussions of 23 April 2017.

Notably, we concur with recommendations 9.12 that MCSCS (rather than OCPC) is the most appropriate agency to determine whether municipal decisions regarding the establishment the policing capacity and the funding of it, are congruent (or not) with the provincial legislation, policies and standards of which MCSCS has carriage.

Furthermore, we concur with all of Justice Tulloch's recommendations with the following exceptions:

- 9.3 Policy and service matters should be referred to the police services board of the relevant force, and the chief of police.
- 9.11 OIPRD should investigate conduct and performance of all police personnel, including special constables and auxiliary members, AND special constables employed in non-police agencies [because, from the public perspective, they have similar special powers and should therefore have the same oversight]. Given OIPRD's investigative role regarding police personnel conduct, by logical extension OIPRD should also be responsible to investigate board member conduct.
- 9.11 Municipalities should investigate non-criminal conduct and performance of bylaw enforcement personnel

If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact Executive Director Fred Kaustinen or me at admin@oapsb.ca or 1-800-831-7727.

Warm regards,

Eli-El Chantiry
President & Chair
OAPSB

Attachment:
IPOR Chapter 9 – OAPSB Response 27 May 2017

Original:
Minister Marie-Franche Lalonde
Attorney General Yasir Naqvi

CC:
Deputy Minister, Matt Torigian
Deputy Attorney General, Irwin Glasberg
Chief of Staff, Shane Gonsalves
Chief of Staff, Dave Phillips
Senior Policy Advisor, Melissa Banfield
Policy Advisor, Branden Tate
ADM, Debbie Conrad
ADM, Stephen Beckett